The Mission of the Association for Geographic Information (AGI) is to maximise the use of geographic information (GI) for the benefit of the citizen, good governance and commerce.

The AGI exists to represent the interests of the UK's GI industry; a wide-ranging group of public and private sector organisations, suppliers of GI software, hardware, data and services, consultants, academics and interested individuals.

The AGI, by way of its unique membership forum, brings together this previously disparate GI community to share ideas on best practice, experience and innovation, and offers access to unparalleled networking opportunities with significant business benefits. As such it acts on behalf of the community as whole.

Since its formal inception in 1989, it has built up a significant membership base and established itself as the respected voice in GI and is THE membership body for everyone with an interest or involvement with GI. The AGI celebrates its 25 year anniversary in 2014.

INFORMATION

The AGI brandmark is the keystone of the way we present ourselves visually and must look the same wherever it appears.

The brandmark has been designed to work across a wide range of mediums - at various sizes - in print & on screen.

This guide explains the visual components that are used to represent AGI and how to use them effectively.

The standard AGI brandmark is made up of the following components. The 'intersecting circles' symbol with the letters 'agi' underneath – and the words (The Association for Geographic Information) set in a specific typeface.

The full-colour version of the AGI brandmark is the primary version of the identity system.

It is strongly recommended that this version be used in branded applications whenever possible.

NOTE:

As one of our most important assets, the brandmark must always appear as shown on this page or in one of the colour variations described in these guidelines. Never attempt to redraw or rescale the brandmark or add other graphic elements to its presentation.

When reproduction or cost constraints prevent the use of the primary full-colour AGI brandmark, use one of the alternative three-spot colour versions.

NOTE:

These brandmarks should never appear on a website, four-colour brochure or any other application where a full-colour brandmark is useable.

When reproduction or cost constraints prevent the use of the primary full-colour AGI brandmark, use one of the alternative one-colour spot versions.

Background colours and graphics can easily overpower or compete with brandmarks.

Always try to maintain separation between the AGI brandmark and the backgrounds where it will appear.

Examples of the brandmark on various backgrounds

To retain the quality of the AGI brandmark, it is recommended that you do not reduce its width to less than 23 mm for print, 23 mm for good quality newsprint and 130 pixels for on-screen applications.

Other reproduction methods may require the minimum size to be greater than the sizes identified here

The consistent and correct application of the AGI brandmark is essential.

Always follow the standards presented in these guidelines. The examples on this page illustrate some of the unacceptable uses of the AGI brandmark.

Never substitute type in the brandmark*

Figure (A) illustrates the full intersecting circles symbol. This symbol can be extracted from the main Brandmark – to further enhance the visual identity across all AGI media.

The examples below indicate how it can be used as a graphic element on covers.

[A] Symbol

Two examples of how the symbol can be used are indicated above:

Among the most important elements of the brand is the corporate typeface. The primary typeface is Futura a distinctive typeface available in various weights.

Manipulating the typeface is prohibited. Effects such as stretching or condensing must never be used.

General Use Font

Arial is the standard font used for letter writing and other internal stationery such as letters, memos and faxes. It is also the font for electronic applications such as the internet and internally

The brandmark must be positioned on its own in order to stand apart from other images and text.

It must be surrounded by a minimum clear zone (Y) as shown. This is equivalent to (X) the height of the letter (i) in agi.

The clear zone helps protect the brandmark and ensures it is always displayed to maximum effect.

Recommended clear zone from AGI brandmark

Sub brands

A series of namestyles for AGI sub-brands have been designed to support and complement the AGI corporate identity. These sub-brands have their own specific colours - indicated below (please refer to the current edition of the Pantone colour standards swatch books for accurate colour breakdowns).
